[Special Dispatch to the Chicago Tribune.]

SPRINGFIELD, Thursday, May 4, 1865.

With the close of the last day's ceremonies the morning period both the cousin's transfer to the tomb and the closing of the doors of the Capitol to the public, the history of the obsequies has been completed. The events of the last two days have been hundreds of miles apart, and yet the hundreds of thousands of mourners who gave them.

Up to the hour of the departure of the funeral train (10 o'clock), the time was occupied in receiving the procession of citizens and strangers who came to look upon the face of the dead President. The whole population of the country came to the State House, and the line of visitors was unbroken from the time the doors were opened.

THE WORK AND ITS REMUNERATION.

At the hour of departure the procession of people had been reduced about the train down to those to whom the duty of the day had been assigned, and the work of the day was completed. The doors of the State House and dependencies were sealed by order of Mr. Secretary Stanton, and the keys delivered to Mr. Morton, of Illinois, who, with Governor Oglesby, Governor Yates, Governor Morton, Governor Brough, Governor Cox, Governor Curtin, Governor Parker, Governor Boreman, Governor Fenton, Governor Randall, Governor Gamble, Governor Stone, Governor Saxton, Governor Smith, Governor Harris, Governor Cummings, Governor Hall, Governor Dennison

THE LATE PRESIDENT.

Resolutions of the Bar of the Supreme Court of Illinois.

ADDRESS OF EX-JUDGE J. D. CATON.

RESPONSE OF JUDGE BREESE.

[Correspondence of the Chicago Tribune.]

SPRINGFIELD, Dec. 4, 1865.

I send you herewith the resolutions of the bar, introduced by Hon. Lyman Trumbull, and the President, adopted this morning at the Supreme Court room, and the address of Ex-Judge Caton, and the response of Judge Breese, which, with the eloquent and appropriate remarks of Judge Trumbull, will be found to be a fitting and appropriate tribute. The room was completely filled with members of the bar, and the bench was occupied by the Judges of the Supreme Court, presided over by Chief Justice Walker. The Governor and State officers were present, and the Senate and House of Representatives, with the Speaker of the House of Representatives of Illinois, Hon. Shelby M. Cullom, who, in remarking, made Judge Caton the organ of the House.

Mr. Trumbull said:

May it please your Honors:

I have been requested to submit to the bar of this court the following resolutions in honor of Abraham Lincoln, and to present to the Court the proceedings of the bar of Sangamon county, which I have had the honor to attend, in relation to the assassination of the late, and to ask that they be entered of record:

RESOLUTIONS OF THE BAR.

Being assembled to express our grief for the foul assassination of Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States, and to give utterance to the feelings of sorrow and indignation which pervade the public heart, at the commission of the crime, we deem it proper to place on record our views of the enormity of the deed, and of the duty of the hour.

Whether we look at the high office he held, the eminent services he rendered, or the many virtues he possessed, we find much to deplore in the untimely end of Abraham Lincoln. Raised from the humblest walks of life, by the force of his own genius, he had won his way to the highest position in the gift of a free people, and had proved himself worthy of the confidence reposed in him. Honest, capable, faithful, he had discharged the duties of his exalted station with an ability and success unsurpassed in the annals of history, and had endeared himself to the hearts of his countrymen by the kindness of his disposition, the purity of his character, and the firmness with which he had adhered to the principles of constitutional liberty.

Called to the Presidency at a time when the country was convulsed by the most gigantic rebellion that has ever threatened the existence of any government, he had met the crisis with a clear conception of the necessities of the occasion, and with a fixed determination to maintain the supremacy of the constitution and the laws. Clothed with the powers of commander-in-chief of the army and navy, he had used the vast military forces placed at his command for the defense of the government, and the overthrow of the rebellion, with a moderation and humanity unexampled in the history of civil wars. Inheriting the principles of the fathers of the republic, he had approved himself their worthy successor in his devotion to the Union, the constitution, and the enforcement of the laws.

Having conducted the country through the perils of the most stupendous rebellion, with patriotism, courage, wisdom and success, he was about to enjoy the reward of his labors, the gratitude of a redeemed people, when he fell by the hand of the assassin.

Hence, while we bow with submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well, we deplore the event as a national calamity, and as a crime of the blackest dye, which has filled the land with mourning, and clothed the whole people in sackcloth.

Resolved, That we deeply deplore the irreparable loss which the country has sustained in the untimely death of Abraham Lincoln, late President of the United States, and the kindling horror of the atrocious crime by which he was hurried into the presence of his God.

Resolved, That we regard the assassination of the President as the result of a wicked conspiracy, formed by traitors and rebels, for the purpose of subverting the government, and that we hold the rebel chiefs, and their known sympathizers, both at home and abroad, responsible for the murder.

Resolved, That we tender to the family of the late President our heartfelt sympathy in the hour of their great affliction, and that we recommend to the people of the United States that they unite with us in the observance of the day appointed by the President for the funeral solemnities.

Resolved, That we request the Judges of this court to attend the funeral of the late President, and that we will attend in a body.

Resolved, That we request the Governor of this State to issue his proclamation, directing the observance of the day appointed by the President for the funeral solemnities, and that we recommend to the people of this State that they unite with us in such observance

His Life, Character and Public Services—Position by Rev. C. H. Read.

"An excellent outcome succeeded in Scran this morning in the presentation of the character of the late Chancellor, and services of our late lamented fellow-citizen, Mr. Alexander Mitchell, by the Rev. C. H. Read, M.A., Rector of Holy Trinity Church, Glasgow. The scene was impressively staged and other circumstances combined to make the occasion one of more than ordinary interest. The church, which was filled to the very doors, was decorated with the suitable flowers, and the pulpit was draped with the Union Jack. The Rector, who was attended by the Rev. Mr. Lord, after which the proclamation of the Queen was read by the Rev. Mr. Lord, after which the proclamation of the Queen was read by the Rev. C. H. Read, who also read the following prayer:

"Almighty God, with whom do dwell the spirits of just men made perfect, we bless Thy holy name for all Thy servants departed this life in Thy faith and fear, but more especially for Thy servant whose death we mourn this day, and we pray that we may follow his good example, and with him and all Thy saints obtain the fulfilment of Thy promises in Thy heavenly kingdom, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

The Rector then read the following address:

"Brethren, we are met here to-day, in obedience to Providence, to do honor to God, and to testify our sorrow for the loss which we have sustained in the death of our late brother, Alexander Mitchell, Esq., of Dalmahoy, Chancellor of the Diocese of Argyll and the Isles, and for many years a member of this congregation. We are met to do honor to God in the person of His servant, who, by the grace of God, was what he was, and who, by the grace of God, has entered into his rest. We are met
